Give Them a Chance!

That is to say, your lungs. Also all jyou thing machinery. Very wonderful The Hirsute Appendage in History chinery it is. Not only the larger airpassages, but the thou ands of li tle tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choke with matter which ought not be ther your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is lust one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Bosehee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed us, you may depend upon this for certain.

Merit Will Tell.

Was never better demonstrated than when "Fryer's Abletene Reme lies" were awarded diplomas at the late California State Fair at Sacramento and at the Mechanics Institute at San Francisco. W. Piu-niger is agent for these celebrated "Abietine Remedies" and he offers to return your money if they do not give satisfaction. In buying, be sure the fac-simile signature of D. F. Fryer is on each, as none are genuine without it.

Heart D sease.

Bead the hospital reports, read the mortuary reports, read the medical publications, read the daily newspapers and learn how wide-spread is heart disease, how difficult of detection it is to most people, how many and how sudd-n are the deaths it causes. Then read Dr. Flinu's treatise on heart disease, and lean what it is, what causes it, what diseases it gives rise to, what its symptoms are and how it may be attacke. If you find that you h ve heart disease, ask your druggist for a bottle of Ur. Flinu's Heart Kemedy. The treatire may be had on application.

HAIR AND BEARD.

"Fair tresses man's imperial race ensuare, And beauty draws us with a single hair." And beauty draws us with a single hair."

No subject within the scope of human science is really so unimportant, as to general well being, and yet, the question of the hair and beard, its cut and color, has been more prolific of custom, rule and law, than almost anything connected with mankind.

The absenciance flows here and of

The champions of long hair, and of short hair have ranged themselves under separate banners, shed each others blood, disturbed whole com-munities, and made history for an idea that could promote neither hap-piness nor contentment for either

Families have been divided by it, divorces have been granted in consequence of it, and legislators, in all ages but our own, have enacted laws to enforce compliance with their own peculiar views in this trivial matter. Common sense eventually regulated the affair and gave to every person the right outside of the tyranny of fashion's whims to care for the exterior of his head and to shape the natural covering of his face according to individual sentiment.

Ecclesiastical government, adopting St. Paul's declaration that "long hair was an abomination unto a man," have made a vigorous war against the sinfulness of the custom and fulminated in opposition to it from the pulpit as barbarous, unclean and unholy; but at the same time they have permitted, telerated and sold immunity from sins, ex special gratia, not of the hair or beard, but of the heart and mind and conscience of greater enormity and more worthy of denunciation and suppression.

Woman's tresses have tuned the poet's lyre, nerved the warrior's steel and drawn woeful sighs from the depths of the lover's heart.

All other features are, to the enthusiastic lover, subordinate—beauty, intelligence and goodness are nothing. His life and hopes are staked on her voluptuous locks; he awakens from his dream of bliss only when, in a moment of curiosity, he discovers it is false—a chignon.

Lank hair, among the ancients, from his dream of bliss only when, in a moment of curiosity, he discovers it is false—a chignon.

Lank hair, among the ancients, was a sign of cowardice; auburn hair, or light brown, evidenced great susceptibility to the tender passion, as well as rare intelligence, industry and a peaceful disposition; black hair was not highly esteemed, the possessors of it being thought jealous and quarrelsome; red hair, in general, was an aversion, a mark of reprobation, even before the time of Judas. "As wicked as a red ass" was freely applied to any one having bright red hair, and was a popular and opprobrious saying, and, to make the sentiment more binding, one of that patient tribe of quadrupeds was made to atone for it every year by being thrown from a high wall.

The Romans never adopted long hair, as later nations did, deeming it effeminate and unbecoming, alike for scholar, statesman or warrior. A few of them may have done so, but it was after they had ceased to be a nation of warriers and became scented courtiers. Shaving, by the Roman youths, that Dionysius, the tyrant, was so fearful of violence that he would permit no one to shave him, and that he singed his beard off with hot walnut shells. This is, of course, an absurdity, for the heat required to singe would have burned the shells; and so, either the tyrant rid himself of his beard in some other way of did not show the

Telegraph Operators in Europe

In Austria telegraph operators are overworked and underpaid to a greater extent than in any other country. The statement is made that within thirteen months no less than nine of 800 operators have become lunatics. This sad fact is attributed to the constant strain on the mind, the small pay and the slender chance for promotion. Fifteen years ago telegraphers in Austria, after a service of twenty years were advanced to be officials of the ninth class, while to-day there is a large number who, although they have served as long as seventeen years, are still in the eleventh class and have 1,500 to 2,000 colleagues ahead of them for promotion. In other countries operators are treated better, and even in Russia they are paid an additional annual sum of 100 roubles for every language they acquire, and also receive extra compensation when working instruments. This extra pay stimulates them to improve their education and at the same time they derive a rest from their monotonous duties.

the tyrant rid himself of his beard in some other way, or did not shave at all; probably the latter.

The greatest prejudice has existed against the wearing of the beard and the style of the hair. Archbishop Tait forbade one of the clergy to officiate in his own church because he had grown a mustache. Lord Justice Knight Bruce refused to hear the cause of a barrister because he wore a beard; and numerous instances might be cited to show the disfavor which the wearing of a beard has excited.—[Geo. Reno asked favors of Stewart last winter, and Stat : Senators Fish, Osburo, and the Assembly delegation of Washoe will endorse the statement that wit rout prejudice the Asyum and University had the full benefit of Steward's influence in the twiffth Legislature. Within the next six years Reno may ask of the Government through Etewart a postoffice building, an Indian school, an appropriation for sluk ng artesian wells or for the support of the States Surveyor General's office. Whether he was born in Ireland or New York whether he was elected from Califorms or Nevada, it matters little to us now; he was elected, he is our Benator, he is the man that represeats us in the highest counsels of the nation. Shall we slur him at his face, stab him in the back, kill his influence, kill the influence of bim who is in a position o do ugood, and who shows an inclina tion to do so?

In the name of a people who pledge their honor to submit to the arbitrament of the ballot; in the name of a people whose interests we have at heart and a part of whom we are, we protest against any use of innuendoes and any sneaking attacks being made, solely to make them odious in the eyes of the people, against not the official con luct but the personality of Woodburn, Jones and Stewart or any one of these representatives of the people.

Judge Edward W. Pettus, of Alabama, it is rumored, will succeed Woods on the Supreme Bench. Judge Pettus has many admirers in Washington, who are personal friends of President Cleveland; this accounts for the rumor. While not so scholarly as Secretary Lamar, whose name has frequently been mentioned in connection with this position, Pettus is said to be an able jurist.

TO-PAY'S NEWS.

I reported, owing to the confusion and lack of system when the bodies were being taken away. Neither can a full list be presented to the public, for scores of those whose infuries were light enough to permit it took trains at Chatsworth or Piper Dity the first opportunity and went home. The official list of the wounded who have been taken care of here and at Piper City does not at present show any more than 100 victims, but there is no doubt whatever that many, more than that were injured. The Coroners's inquest to-day adjurned until Tuesday after one witness had been examined. He was W. G. Messler, a grain dealer at Chatsworth. The only thing notable about his evidence was the statement that although he was one of the first at the wreck and remained there until the arrival of the first relief train he saw no interference by anybody with the valuables of the victims. he saw no interference by anybody with the valuables of the victims.

Powder Works Explosion

SAN FRANCISCO, August 12, All but three of the Chinese employed at the giant powder works Berkeley have been accounted since yesterday's explosion. It is still doubuful whether the missing are safe or were blown into infinitesimal pieces, but the Superintendent o' the works thinks they will come out when their scare is over. The agents think it is impossible at The agents think it is impossible at this time to give an estimate of the loss. They do not include the frame buildings in the counting up of how much they are out of pocket, the principal loss being to the plant and the business. There are many unfilled orders on hand, and all operations will be delayed for several weeks. The rush of the curiously-inclined to the scene of the accident still continues. Everyone going there is disappointed, as no one is allowed to go near the works, the Superintendent deeming it unsafe, as it is possible that another explosion may yet occur. another explosion may yet occur.

A Bad Gang Detected.

BELGRADE, August 13. A gang of murderers has just been arrested at Pierot. Their victims during the past two years number 60. Disguised as gendarmes the assassins pretended to arrest travelers for various offenses, and then robbed and killed them. A deputy of the Prefec-of Pierot was the first person arrested of Pierot was the first person arrested for complicity in the crimes. It is be-lieved that political motives led to the commission of the murders. Two French newspaper men and Prince Alexander's groom were among the victims. An official committee of in-quiry has been dispatched to Pierot.

The situation in Aurora promises a prosperous future for that camp. The Durant ledge is now larger than when first reported, although it is not so rich. Mr. Colcord is developing the Junista. In the bilver Lining, work is progressing favorably, and the company will soon reduce a quantity of ore. The Antelope is steadily worked and is looking fine and the mill is engaged on its ore. Mr. Novacovich, of this place, who has advanced a great deal of money to the English Company operating there, says he thinks that it will not be long before Aurora will stand second of the bullion producing camps in Nevada. James A. Brown, known everywhere as"Long Brown,"committed suicide yesterday morning in Virginia City by taking a dose of morphine. Brown has long been known to the writer as a "fellow of infinite jest," and under all circumstances was always a jolly fellow. Finaucially and physically Brown has been out of luck for some time, and from several conversations had with him within the last few months on the subject, the manner of his sudden taking off is to the writer no surprise. The Enterprise of this morning says of his death:

HIS PAREWELL TO THE WORLD. In a memorandum book he left the following letter, (addressed to no one,) which shows that he took his departure in a very pleasant frame of mind. The writing is firm and distinct down to the last line or two, when the words are disconnected and the letters indistractions.

are disconnected and the letters indistinct and straggling, as though written at a time when he was fast succumbing to the influence of the potent drug. He says:

"I am trying an experiment which I hope to make a success. If it is I shall be happy and others should be. I apologize to my friends, but my enemies—if there is a possible chauce—how busy I will make it for them. This country is played out and I have started for those pale realms of shade, where each must take his chamber in the silent halls of death. If don't know what kind of treatment I shall get, and I don't care.

know what kind of treatment I shall get, and I don't care.

I have a very fine trunk at Carson City, and it is not in soak either. By writing to George C. Bryson, Mayor of the city, I want James Breen to have it. There are some things in it which I know he will like to have. which I know he will like to have. The trunk is yours; use your own judgment as to the disposition of its contents. Destroy any letters you may find. And now, James, old boy, good-bye, and all the r st of my friends. Just put me in a box, and as you are about to plant me, drop in a small flask of whisky straight; no ice, unless it is petrified. Address all correspondence in care of his Satanic Majesty; he is a personal friend, and I think the only resident of the camp I excect to visit, and so he can make lexpect to visit, and so he can make

I think the only resident of the camp I exoect to visit, and so he can make it pleas ant for me.

"Does this look like weakening, or squealing? I expect to keep open house to-morrow, but I have not picked out the place. I am neither crazy or drunk. I have done this deliberately and of my own free will. Don't make any fuss, brass band, etc. One thing I do request, that no individual will go to any expense and say 'poor fellow!" The amount they will spend might have done me good a week ago. But again, good-bye; I am satisfied. I shall have a pleasant time; I shall be contented if I can only find a pair-o-dice. Don't kill me for that! I am old and only in the way. So young fellow, a sh I thinking it working to a charm."

The last sentence was written just as given above, and was evidently written just as he was falling into his lat sleep. In saying "I shall be contented if I can only find a pair-o-dice?" he is making a pun on the word paradise and also hinting at his profession in life, and he asks not be killed for the badness of the pun. Such was the end of "Long Brown," and such his last joke.

THE PIONEER BARBER SHOP

How Nick Hammersmith Fought the Flery Demon-Industry's Reward-Food for Thought. Yesterday I learned that Reno was to have another barber shop, and I entered it for the purpose of interviewing the proprietor. I found that Mr. Nick Hammersmith had concluded to go into business for himself. It is 35 years ago since he began his labors. He learned his trade in San Francisco with his in Downieville and Marysville, uncle, but appeared with razors Cal., in the early "fifties." In 1860 he went to Virginia City and was employed by Wm. Mayer and subsequently by the writer's father-inlaw, Mr. Louis Flick, (now deceased.) Through his care and industry, as well as his polite attentious he soon gained many friends, so that he threw out to the breezes his own red, white and blue sign manual of his calling. Business was good until 1867, when the fire fleud almost blasted his bopes. Yet this did not dampen his ardor, as he went to work as a journeyman immediately. Accumulating a little money and hearing of the future prospects of Reno, in 1868 he opened a shop under the firm name of HAMMERSMITH AND PEYSER.

The latter gentleman he bought out and was doing a prosperous business until 1870, when the flery elements swept everything he bad into a pile of ashes. This, although the second visitation, did not deter him in his endeavors to win, and another shop was occupied by the intrepid Nick. His old trade revived, and for two years he was happy over the profits he realized and the pleasure he found in his increasing family. Two years had scarcely passed (1872) when, strange to say, the devouring element laid his establishment in ruins. He was then on Virginia street and a elements swept everything he had his establishment in ruins. He was then on Virginia street and a big portion of the town was destroyed. Still defying his arch enemy, he threw out his banner once more like Rudiger, and for four years met with reasonable success, but was compelled to sell out, owing to an accident which deprived him of the use of his left hand. He sold to Morris and Denkle. This caused him to relinquish his tensorial inclinations for at least six months, when he again least six months, when he again defied the glaring monster and

LIKE THE ASSYRIAN. And swept everything before it, in-cluding the indomitable Nick's entire accumulations. When the debris was cleared away and the town began to assume some shape, he plied his art as an employe for the muintenance of his family, just as full of hope as ever He has a wife and eight children and his struggles with misfortune can betstruggles with misfortune can better be understood than described.
On Thursday last he again started for himself and the congratulations and encouragement he received were fully demonstrated by the number of patrons who occupied the two handsome chairs in bis elegant shop on Virginia street next door to Powning's proposed new building.

It would be superfluous to introduce Nick Hammersmith to any of California's or Nevada's early citizens, as he is known from San Event, as he is known from San Event is one of many similar events francisco to New York City as the best hair cutter in America, while his gentle touch in his dexterous use of the razor cannot be excelled by the best artist in the country. He feels and in fact to ks as young as he did 20 years ago. His good humor never forsakes him, for he can narrate anecdotes and early reminiscences of many men who figure to-day conspicuously in the legal, social, political and financial world, whom he

LATHERED AND SHAVED That stood him off on many an occasion for weeks at a time. He has old souvenir cupe that bear the names of some of those who to-day could draw their checks for enough money to buy the city of Reno and not miss the amount invested. Their names are too well-known to need mentioning. Whenever any of this class of people remain over in Reno they invariably ask for Nick Hammersmith, the "pioneer barber." It will be peasant information for his many friends throughout the coast, when I announce through the Gazarre this evening that he is again in business for himself. There will be no difficulty in their finding his place of business, as the amaliest urchin or the oldest inhabitant on the streets of the city by the riverside will direct them to That stood him off on many an oc-

"THE PIONEER BARBER SHOP" With pleasure, as ever yone knows the genial Nick. His new departure is in accord with the times, as he requested me to announce that he would charge 25 cents each for a shave, hair-cutting and shamp sing. He does this because Reno is rapidly advancing and he wishes to participate in her ownward march of progress. It is to be hope 1, in conclusion, that now in his advancing years he may be sparred another ing years he may be spared another visitation from the devoring fland and that his active determination, and that his active determination, not to be downed, will be appreciated by his fellow citizens. Such grit as Nick's go-aheaditiveness indicates is bound to win, even if it is to come when the silvery hairs admonish us of the rapid approaches of old age.

NAHOM.

To Our Friends.

RENO WATER.

Scientific Analysis of that Supplied the Town and of Hunter Creek.

RENO WATER COMPANY.

OFFICE OF C. M. FASSETT,
DEUGGIST AND ASSATER,
KENO, NEV., June '8, 1887.]

T. K. HYMERS, ESQ., CHAIRMAN BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS—DEAR SIR:
In accordance with your request I have made examinations of three samples of water furnished by you, with special reference to such impurities as would render it unfit for domestic use, and beginner to be present the following report:
Sample No. I was taken from the river about ten miles above town, at the point where the Highland ditch takes it supply; sample No. 2 was taken from the main reservoir, four feet from the surface, near where the water used in the town-is taken; sample No. 3 was taken from the Highland ditch jus, before it empties into the main reservoir. The following is a tabulated statement of the results of the results of the lesis made:

(In parts per million.)

SAMPLES. |No. 1|No. 2|No. 8 (In grains per gallon.) MPLES. | No. 1 | No. 2 | No. 3

The ammonia found indicates the proportion of contamination from animal sources, such as sewage, decomposing animal matter, etc., and in Nos. 1 and 3 is in as smal proportion as can be expected in a stream which flows through as many towns as the Truckee; while in No. 2 it is in three times the quantity as in the others, and above the limit of safety—fixed by most authorities at .08 to .12 parts free ammonia, and .18 to .20 parts albumenoid ammonia per million of water.

albumenoid ammonia per million of water.

The second table shows the results obtained from careful evaporation of the water; drying and ignition of the residue in platinum crucibles, and proves that the water of the Truckee is as free from deleterious matters, prejudicial to health, as that supplied to almost any city of the Union.

as that supplied to almost any city of the Union.

Impurities resulting from sawdust in the river would be shown in the table under the head of "organic solids," hut the results obtained show that the amount of such matter is very small; much less, indeed, than is contained in many natural springs, some of which carry five grains or more of organic matter to the gallon just where they bubble from the earth.

The comparatively large amount of total solids in sample No. 3 is accounted for by the fact that the sample was taken from the ditch the second day the water was running in it, after it had been empty for a few days, the water naturally being turbid from fine particles of silt taken up from the bod of the ditch.

The samples all show an alkaline reaction, but so slight as to be immaterial; being less than one-tenth of the limit of asfety, placed at "an alkalinity greater than that produced by adding one part.

by weight, of caustic soda to one thousand parts of distilled water."

These various results show:
First—That the water supplied to the town through the main reservoir is not sufficiently pure to be used for domestic purposes with safety.
Secondly—That the water in the river is reasonably pure and wholesome, and Thirdly—That the water supplied to the town receives the greater part of its impurities in the main reservoir and its approaches.

As amplicable to the main reservoir water the second s purities in the main reservoir and its approaches.

As applicable to the sawdust question, I quote the following extract from an article on water by Professor S. P. Sadtler, Ph. D., Professor of Chemistry in the University of Pennsylvanis, etc., etc.: "Organic matter may be derived from a vegetable source, such as leaf mould, and the decomposition products of wood, in which case it is practically harmless, or ill may be derived from animal sources, in which case it almost always causes a serious impurity."

Kespectfully submitted,

Dispensing with Bridesmaids,

There has been a great deal of talk lately among the sashionables as to whether it is the correct thing for a bride to be attended to the altar by a string of fair bridesmaids, and also if the uncompromising black coat of the usher should be longer permitted to obstruct the view. There certainly has been a tendency displayed in recent marriages in Philadelphia to dispense with bridesmaids, and several reasons have been given by the brides. A pertinent one is that it is such an expense to a girl to find a handsome dress, which, as a rule, can only be worn on one occasionat the weedding. A bridesmaid's frock is seldom of any use as a ball dress, and anybody who has noticed the picturesque groups of maidens who follow after the ushers would hardly care to see young ladies attired in that fashion on the streets.
